REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. Claims 1-14 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The present invention is directed to a field emission display (FED) panel having a voltage capable of giving an electric field strength not lower than the threshold of electron emission is applied between the cathodes and the anodes, and while the cut-off voltage is not being applied between the cathodes and the gates, full-screen white display is performed at the maximum luminance on the entire display screen.

The closest prior art, Park (US 5,272,419) discloses a FED panel including the second addressing electrode is supplied with zero voltage and the cut-off electrode is supplied with a positive voltage during blanking (see the abstract). Suzuki et al (US 5,627,436) discloses multi-electron beam source with a cut off circuit and image data using the same (see the abstract). Onodaka et al (US 5,589,738) discloses a FED panel including the voltage at the point "a" is decreased to a level below the voltage V_{TH} of Fig. 8 to thereby prevent emission of electrons from the field emission cathode (FEC) element in the image cell section (20), resulting in luminescence of the anode An being stopped (col. 10, lines 21-25).

The improvement comprises a FED panel comprising a control unit for controlling the operation of a display panel driving circuit in order to complete, when a display completing signal is generated, application of the cut-off voltage or a driving voltage capable of providing a particular display state, after a predetermined time passes from the moment when a potential of the anode decreases below a threshold potential capable of causing electron emission from the electron emitters with the cut-off voltage or the driving voltage capable of providing the particular display state being applied between the cathodes and the gates.

This distinct feature has been added to the independent claims 1 and 13 and render the above limitations are allowable and along with other limitations as recited in the independent claims 1 and 13.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
